

Brexit

We provide comprehensive analysis of the legal consequences of Brexit, to help businesses understand the issues and determine the best way to address them.

Brexit

The two year period in which the UK and the EU will negotiate the UK's terms of withdrawal from the EU remains unchanged and moves on relentlessly.

If no agreement on the arrangements for the UK's withdrawal is reached, Brexit will occur on 29 March 2019 unless all Member States unanimously agree otherwise. There may be a transition period from 30 March 2019 to 31 December 2020.

On 26 June 2018, the government issued a Press Release stating that the EU \(Withdrawal\) Bill has received Royal Assent, becoming the EU (Withdrawal) Act 2018. The Act will establish the legislative framework for the UK's scheduled withdrawal from the EU on 29 March 2019. The government has started using the powers in the Act to amend primary and secondary legislation so that this functions on and after exit day. The government has estimated that around 800 pieces of secondary legislation will be required.

Here you will find all the latest information and guidance to navigate you through the legal implications of Brexit for the next few years.

Have you seen an increased interest in Financial Institutions relocating to your country?

Outside of regulatory approval, what is the most challenging aspect of setting up a business in your country?

Featured links

Recent Developments

How to provide financial services in key European jurisdictions

Breaking down Brexit: a blog

Disputes Aviator

Timeline

Brexit microsite

The UK's exit from the European Union does, however, raise crucial issues as to the potential legal consequences and impact on business activities in the UK.

Contact

Charles Bankes, Mark Curtis, Jo Weston

This document (and any information accessed through links in this document) is provided for information purposes only and does not constitute legal advice. Professional legal advice should be obtained before taking or refraining from any action as a result of the contents of this document.

© Simmons & Simmons LLP 2018. All rights reserved. Registered in England & Wales Registered Number OC352713

elexica Limited, CityPoint, One Ropemaker Street, London EC2Y 9SS